

As a teacher and technology coach, I have seen my school literally transform over the past five years from a handouts, textbook based environment where students are bored and unengaged to a dynamic environment where students use technology to learn and apply knowledge. A boost in e-rate funds would enable our rural school take the next step with devices to fully prepare students for the 21st expectations of employers across North Carolina and the United States.